HOMECOMING COMING TO CLC

By Verlin Olson

As Chairman for the 1980 CLC Homecoming, I would like to invite all present students to take part in the Homecoming activities this weekend. On Friday night, we will present a National Film Board documentary titled "China Mission" which deal with the life of Chester Ronning, a man who holds a prominent place in the history of CLC. I strongly recommend this film to you.

There are several events on Saturday which will interest you. As you may know, each house will enter a float in the parade as part of an intramural competition. The parade begins at 11:00 a.m. in front of the Convocation Centre. You should have your floats there and be ready to go by 10:45. Here is your chance to turn a few heads on Main Street!

On Saturday afternoon, we are conducting guided tours of the City and campus, including a tour through the dorms. The Alumni Association plans to award prizes for the cleanest and best decorated dorms, if we can find any. If you want a place to hide your junk, dump it in Room 8 of Moi Hall. I hear that it's the messiest room on campus and its occupants won't notice a little extra stuff laying around. Presentations of awards for floats and dorms will be made at the dance.

We planned an informal volleyball tournament in the gym on Saturday afternoon for members of the Alumni. However, you might want to drop by the gym and, if there is room, get into a pickup game with some of the oldtimers.

The Saturday evening activities begin with the Variety Program. There will be an assortment of skits and musical selections as well as the presentation of the Distinguished Alumni Award. As if that is not entertainment enough, the program will be followed by the Alumni Ball featuring a well known Edmonton entertainer and Alumnus, Danny Hooper.

On Sunday morning, we hope to see you all up bright and early for the Worship Service at 9:30 a.m. in the Convocation Centre.

Besides the Homecoming events outlined above, there will be 2 AGAC competitions held in town on Saturday; X-Country running begins at 10:30 and Canoeing at 1:00 p.m. I also understand that there is something special going on in the gym after the film on Friday night. As you can see then, there is going to be lots to do on Campus this weekend. Don't miss the fun! You are all future members of the CLC Alumni Association and we look forward to meeting you.

DANNY HOOPER

By Orlando Olson

One of the most striking personalities to attend Camrose Lutheran College in recent years is Danny Hooper. We are fortunate to have Danny Hooper and his group providing the music for the dance on Saturday evening during the upcoming Homecoming Weekend. If you miss this one you'll be sorry.

Dan Hooper came to CLC from Tomahawk, Alta. He began his singing career by tape recording material he heard on radio and copying the style of various singers. He was well past that stage when he arrived at CLC, and was very popular on campus with his songs, comedy and his group of that period called "The Hayloft Rangers". He traveled widely with his show for a few years, performing in Las Vegas among other places and was a serious contender in Canada's Juno Awards. In the last year he has settled in Edmonton, where he operates his restaurant, "Danny Hooper's Stockyard", featuring nationally acclaimed performers. Danny himself provides the entertainment one evening each week. I personally enjoy Danny Hooper's sparkling personality and ability as a comedian even more than his music. To see him is to love him.

HOMECOMING FLOATS

Each house is encouraged and expected to enter one for Saturday's parade (11:00 a.m.). Show your house and school spirit to all of Camrose and get some intramural points as well!

Alumni Disco

ALUMNI DISCO—Friday night, 10:00-1:00 a.m. Put on by your favorite last year Alumni. With another guest appearance from the CKBR Disc Jockey. Come meet old and new friends. Only $1.00/person or $1.50/couple. (Any kind of couple...well, almost any kind.)

DANCE

This is one of the featured events during Homecoming. Renowned singing Artist Danny Hooper will be performing. Yes Danny Hooper is an Alumni of CLC. (We do get around.) The dance starts at 9:00 p.m. $3.00/person or $5.00/couple (Boy-girl type couple that is).

Letters to the Editor

Editorial

You have to make a choice; How many times have you heard that statement this year? If you have not yet, do not worry—you will. As the semester progresses you'll find yourself getting involved in more and more activities. Until one day you will find yourself scheduled to be in four places at once. This wouldn't be except that this usually happens just before finals, when you should be studying the most. After all, the main purpose for our being here is academics. Face it, the crunch is on. There just are not enough hours in the day—so we start to cut short our nights, until we become a run down lot, susceptible to dreaded diseases, especially MONO. My advice to you is to make the choice now. Do not wait until you're on probation.

A word of praise should go to those who have changed their parking habits behind the new dorms, but to those of you who choose to ignore the last editorial (or didn't even read it, which is probably most of you) consider this: A new paint job to cover up scratches from where the car you boxed in tried to get past you would make for some long Thursday nights.

When submitting articles, house reports, letters to the editor, etc., please include full name. If you prefer the article to remain anonymous please attach appropriate note. All submission will be gladly accepted.

HAPPY

HALLOWEEN

Dear Editor:

Is there any organization in the CLC administration? The reason I ask is that some people I have come to know (because I live in the same dorm) are being treated unfairly by the administration. Six of the rooms are being made into offices which means people moving down the hall. These people have paid their fees and are now well established in their room. All these problems could have been avoided had the administration done the renovations during the summer. The afternoons in North are ridiculous with all of the pounding and noise going on.

Lars Lehmann

Dear Editor:

Are you pleased with your accommodations? Whatever your answer to this question, come over to North and view our rooms. If the people of North were paying any less than the new dorms, there would be no complaining. We have one bathroom between twenty people which is a little worse than one bathroom between three or four people. We have one large lounge and one T.V. between 42 people. It gets a little crowded down there when most of these people show up. With the construction or destruction taking place in North, the noise level is atrocious. Impossible to study and hard even to think. There are a lot of good people in North and a lot of dorm spirit but that alone does not make up for the fact that the administration is ripping us off.

Martin Bean

Dear North Residents:

I can understand your problem and frustration of living in North. I know it would be the last place on this campus that I would want to live. But do not worry, maybe someday the administration and the construction crew will get their act together and complete something on time. Actually you should consider yourselves lucky—you could be living 5 blocks from campus and sharing a 2 bedroom apartment with 6 guys like they did last year.

Dear Editor:

I am a very angry second year student. I have always followed the dress code even though others haven't. On October 5th I decided to go to supper in shorts because it had been hot all day and that was what I had been wearing. I was cold—sorry, yelled at—to go back to my room and change. Now, I know that those were the rules last year but I had been led to believe that those rules had been changed.

Every nice day there has been so far this year. I have seen at least two people per meal in shorts walk into the cafeteria, eat their meal, and leave without being told to go back to their room and change. Naturally, I had come to the conclusion that that sort of thing was now allowed in the cafeteria. Well, I went in there and the first thing I knew Myrehaug was down my back telling me to go change. I asked here about the others who had gotten away with it prior to me; she avoided the question.

After changing, I came back to eat. While Myrehaug was watching the "extras" table, as she usually does, she let some guy in bare feet go through the line without a question.

She knows me and she knows that I have never willfully broken the dress code before. She lets the newcomers do it all the time (perhaps because she doesn't know them but that shouldn't stop her) but I get nabbed the one and only time I do it. Is this fair? Or do I have the right to complain?

Peeved!

Dear Peeved:

I feel that both you and Mrs. M. are to blame for this situation. You knew better than to show up in the cafeteria with shorts on, even though Mrs. M. has slipped up on her job a few times and has let others in.

The sanitation rules have not changed over the summer anywhere else, so why should they change here. Therefore you had no reason to presume that you would be allowed into the cafeteria with shorts. But the matter of Mrs. M. allowing a few "selective" persons in without proper attire is another matter. I agree she should be consistent in her decisions but wouldn't you tire of chasing people around constantly. The fact of the matter is that we shouldn't need her as a watchdog over us. We should be responsible enough to conduct ourselves properly while eating in public and that includes wearing shorts to supper.

We are only responsible for replies to the Letters to the Editor and not the letters themselves.

SOON TO ARRIVE

FADED GLORY

The following article is by Josi Koeman, a dutch visa student.

Greeting from us "the muscular people", who've been on the great and exciting canoe-trip last week. Although my arms seem to be twice as thick and heavy, I'll try to write down something about our amazing trip. After a long, long trip we arrived almost in the middle of the night at the famous Saskatchewan River. Our first great scary experience was there: we had to cross the river in the dark. But Mrs. Gibson and Bernie, who were so good to drive us, shone the van-lights on the water till we landed safe and sound on the far shore. The next morning was just beautiful; clear sky, sunny, but there was also a little breeze, well maybe I should call it a little storm. Now we had to deal with the powerful forces of nature, and I think that feels great! While learning how to do the eddy-turns we had our first taste of each other's gorp; yummie, yummie, gorp is one of the things that make the outdoors very attractive. At lunch-time we finally could listen to Richard's thought of the day; we were all anxious to hear him!

After a long day of paddling and experience how strong and powerful the river can be we arrived at our place of destination: the camp. Hoerree! That meant food, dry socks, and sleep! At night we had a real nice campfire, where everybody shared each other's experiences of that day. "What was your high?" and "What was your low?" Everybody felt that one of their highs was "that it felt really, really good to be together again in nature as good-friends". Next morning Gibber woke us with his "soft" voice! I think even the coyotes got scared of that noise, because they replied to it in chorus. But it must be said his voice is sure efficient, we all woke up at once. Wow, a beautiful day again; sun, no clouds, and this time the wind in our back. It was a very good day, the environment was just beautiful, around every corner there was something new for us to see. In a fast speed we crossed lots of rapids, yes and also the Blue Rapids, they told me that they were very famous. I was so excited about those waves that I just watched them and forgot to paddle. Gibber told me that was not very good to do, because there's a big chance that the canoe becomes unbalanced and that means tip. At our camp we saw some tremendous beaver-dams, just huge ones, it was beautiful to see.

Saturday morning was another beautiful day! It really was a gorgeous day. Everybody was in a real good mood, and while we were singing along the river we reached our camping place already at 4:30 p.m. An unexpected surprise, which made everybody very happy. The camp was situated very beautiful; lots of nice spruce-trees, and just at our camp the river had some huge rapids. Some of us wanted to try them out with an empty canoe. Kirsti and Keith, till then I thought they were very experienced with whitewater canoeing, went first. But ohhala what did my eye see: an upside down canoe and two wet people floating down the river.

ODIN

By Diane Hansen

Well, another two weeks have passed and Solheim has been extremely busy. Starting with the girl's raid on the guys. The girls descended down to the guys' lounge, arms filled with teddy bears, story books, hot chocolate and doughnuts to read the guys a very late bedtime story. The following week the guys decided it was their turn to retaliate. The guys in their three-piece suits presented the girls with long stem roses and escorted us from our rooms to the lounge where a fire was burning and soft music playing. After dancing for awhile we were escorted back to our rooms and tucked into bed. What classy guys!

Last time I neglected to mention the names of the Solheim representatives. The executive is as follows:

President: Perry Taylor
 Vice President: Marsha Hansen
 Sec/Treasurer: Jane Morrison
 Social Convenor: Bruce Grendick
 Sports Reps.: Ken Wilde

Religious Life Rep: Fern Beatty
 Cultural Rep: Karen Butler

In intramurals, Odin is hanging in there with alot of skill and enthusiasm. In the X-country run last week we did extremely well.

Mavis placed second, Sherry-Lynn placed third and Heather placed fourth in the girls' section. Ken placed eighth and Dave placed ninth.

In closing I would like to tell Perry, sorry to hear about your toe, maybe you should ask Bonnie to boil some water for you to soak it in!

TYR

By Cathie Leverman

Well, here is the latest NEWSFLASH from Tyr!

The girls "creped" the guys one early morning! I guess I should explain before anyone gets some strange ideas.

If you happened to be wandering through Hoyme Lounge on the evening of Wed., Sept. 1, you probably smelled something delicious. It was the Tyr girls cooking crepes. Thursday morning they filled them with cold strawberries and whipped cream, then paraded over to downstairs Mo! to wake up their guys at 6:30 a.m. for "breaky". Some of the sounder sleepers got thier showers before thier breakfast, with not too much say in the matter. Others that woke up cranky had to get spoon fed by "Auntie Carolyn" and her acrobatic techniques.

If you are wondering where all the action is just look under "Tyr". Tyr has been the scene of the "Missing Mattress Mystery"! If you are ever missing your mattress, check upstairs Mo!. They have been complaining that these mattresses keep appearing in their dorm and they don't know what to do with them! The girls say they didn't take them but we'll let you be the judges of that!

Until next time—Keep Smiling...
 Cathie

THOR

The past few weeks at CLC have been very busy for the members of Thor. Our year started off well, especially at the Viking Rodeo. We received a first for our chant, a second for our flag and overall we tied we tied for third place. It was a good time that was enjoyed by all.

Shortly after the rodeo, Thor challenged Baldu to a Tug-o-War, with one small catch. It was to take place over the creek. When all was set and ready, we pulled Baldu into the water with little opposition. Another triumph, but it is only the start.

The soccer intramurals went well, we won most of our games by a wide margin. We collected maximum participation points at every game. Just this past week we got top position in the intramural X-country race. With Bernie taking first, Kevin second and Dennis third. Way to go Guys. At the present time we are also doing well in slow-pitch.

We held house elections and results were as follows:

President: John Hudson
 Vice-President: Kelly Thomas
 Sec/Treasurer: Jennifer Herzog
 Social Convenor: Kevin Ree
 Sports Reps: Dawn Witt

Religious Life Reps: Melanie Wagner
 Cultural Co'rd: Kelly Thomas

We at Thor are definitely not all work and no play. Our girls surprised us one morning at 6:30 with a delicious breakfast of blueberry pancakes and syrup. It was great girls. Thanks alot!

We tried to repay them this Wednesday when we awakened them at 6:00 a.m. and escorted them down to Smitty's Pancake House for a meal of pancakes, eggs, and bacon. I still say we have the classiest group of girls on campus. They sure looked good Wednesday morning.

Before I go, I'd like to encourage Nuala, Jennifer, and Brenda in their diets. You don't really need to, but if you say so!

Till next time, take 'er easy!

FREY

By Elan Haverstock

Well, it's time once again for news from Bergh Hall.

As far as intramural sports go Frey, although not being particularly successful in All-Star soccer and slow pitch, has won one game in tennis and has gained participation points in the 2.3 mile X-country race.

The big event since my last report was the Bergh, Anderson and Marken Dorm-warming. Our theme was "Western Day" and the turn out on the whole for the three dorms was great. Most of the enthusiasm at Bergh Hall was being put into a contest of who could stay on our homemade Bucking Bronco the longest. Unfortunately none of our other zany activities, like the egg-tossing contest, were well attended. (Anybody want to buy some eggs...cheap!???)

As usual, to add some spice to life and to keep our guys on their toes, the Bergh Girls preformed another raid but this time it was a little nasty.

Our objective was to stack the guy's mattresses up against the three lounge doors and we succeeded—stacking 22 mattresses in 10 minutes. Talk about team work!! The most amazing part was that the only five guys in the entire dorm were in the lounge and they didn't hear a thing!!! Unfortunately some of the tired hockey locks were upset because they had to remake their beds. Sorry guys, we only meant it as a joke!

Well, the only other excitement over the past two weeks was an early morning fire drill. It was rumored that some people mistook the alarm for their alarm clocks and were a "bit" confused. Such is life.

The next major event coming up is Homecoming and needless to say Frey will be out decorating a fantastic Homecoming float—so look out opposing houses!!

Until the next edition of The Dag remember this: Always behave like a duck—keep calm and unruffled on the surface but paddle like the devil underneath!!

Early to bed...early to rise.

LOKI

By Joyce Johnson

Greeting! Things are back to normal as the last traces of our dorm warming disappear. It was a memorable occasion. We had authentic decorations, good participation and according to reliable source the dance was "unforgettable, breathtaking, and indelible—truly a night to remember." So our biggest hope is that all who did attend really enjoyed themselves.

We are hoping for a similar response of participation and enthusiasm for Homecoming. Much consideration and ideas are in the making for the upcoming events and decorating contest.

In the limelight of sports, Loki is doing well. Things are looking up in the slow-pitch. In terms of standings we are in the top half and have healthy prospect of entering the first place. So let's keep up the spirit and remember "Nothing great was ever achieved without enthusiasm". Giv'er Loki!!

VALHALLA

By Laura Schau

Since the beginning of the year, Marken has been bursting with activity. In intramurals, Valhalla got a great start by winning the Viking Rodeo. Since then Valhalla has placed second in the canoe races and third in the cross-country race.

Within our dorm Valhalla has had two raids. The guys wearing suits and ties, woke the girls up early one morning for a breakfast of cinnamon buns. The girls, also dressed up nice, then woke the guys one night for a snack of apple pie and ice cream. Both groups were equally surprised and pleased about the trouble taken to make the raids nice.

On October 2nd, Marken, in conjunction with Anderson and Bergh, held its wild west dorm warming. Marken began the festivities by supplying some real western chow for the many people who came out. Valhalla is headed for a great year because we really have a great bunch of people in our dorm. From among them we chose:

Betty Gilholme	President
Mark Yuha	Vice-President
Mike Statters	Treasurer
Jim Jones	Sports Reps.
Tanya Sotnikov	"
Sue Fiege	Religious Life
Glenda Hunter	Cultural Co'od.
Larry Paterson	Social Convenor
Kathy Kleven	"
Ruth Gretschmann	House Reporter
Laura Schau

I think that this year Valhalla will truly prove to be a "House of Victors"!

BALDUR

By Al Kautz

Baldur's Intramural teams have done quite well. The baseball team has managed to win every game so far.

Only a few incidents occurred during the past week in the Baldur residents. One person decided that dorm life wasn't so great and moved to more comfortable quarters. I somehow feel that the bridge was not his idea of comfortable quarters. Most people liked the long weekend and had a rough time coming back, knowing that the food was not like that at home. A few people were not as fortunate as to be able to have homecooked meals and I am sure that they envied those that were able to. Now with midterms just around the corner I am sure everyone is in high spirits.

CHAPLAIN'S CHAT

So, why should we be concerned about Indian people? Don't they have all the advantages and opportunities of living in this great country as we do? After all, they don't seem to care about getting ahead and getting rich and using the resources that are available--so if they won't do it, why shouldn't we take over their land and their rivers and their lakes?

"Indian Awareness Week", October 12-19, sponsored by the Lutheran Churches in Canada, is not designed to present easy solutions to a very complex question, but rather it has as its mandate the following statement: "Since all people are created in the image of God and God's grace is available for all, and because the Gospel of Jesus Christ calls us beyond separation and estrangement, we therefore commit ourselves to reconciliation and good relationships with our neighbors, the Indian and Metis people of Canada." I wonder how many of us are prepared to make that statement our own! The costs may be significant for us, because it will demand of us that we take a look at our lifestyle and attitudes. It will be necessary for us to re-evaluate the goals and priorities that we may have made for ourselves in life. It will be necessary that we look at the way we consume, the way we spend our time, the way we "use people and love things". Giving an offering to help the cause won't help. It is a matter of justice--of seeing our brothers and sisters as brothers and sisters, not as lesser people, no-goods, lazy and backwards, immoral, disgusting--but as men, women and children who are created in the image of God, as we are, and who are loved by Christ, as we are, and who share in the fears and joys of life, as we do!

"And what does the Lord require of you, but to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with your God." (Micah 6:8)

I struggle with the whole question of justice from the Christian perspective. It is deep and probing and has no easy answers for life. We live in a society and a culture where abundance of possessions is the sign of happiness and success, and yet we know that it very often brings just the opposite. We can quickly blame the Indian for the situation in which he finds himself, and no doubt some foolish things have been done by some of his people. But then who of us have not done foolish things? So what do we do?

As we become more open, and eager to understand, perhaps attitudes will be changed and healing can take place. I believe it still begins within each of us, deep in our own hearts and consciences, for God does not want us to live in hatred and mistrust of our brothers and sisters, but in mutual respect and acceptance.

Pastor Jim

CHRISTIAN LIFE NEWS

The film, "Martin Luther" will be shown on the campus on Wednesday, October 22, beginning at 9:00 p.m. in B1. This is an excellent film on the life of the Protestant Reformer and should be seen by everyone! It will last for 1 hour and 45 minutes: a free-will coin offering will be received to help pay for the cost of film rental. Everyone is invited!

MYRNA'S RE'MARKS

Myrna's Remarks will be fairly brief this week due to the PE 280 canoe trip I went on. It was a great trip but didn't leave me much time to get this written.

I hope you all enjoyed the Thanksgiving weekend. Most of you probably feasted on Mom's home cooked turkey dinner. I bet you really appreciated it. My Thanksgiving meal was macaroni and cheese which tasted great but just doesn't quite compare to turkey.

I'd like to make a few comments about the fire drill we had on Tuesday night. First of all I know it is an awful time to have one but we want to know who doesn't wake up so that if there was a real fire the Hall Seniors would be aware of who to check on. Secondly when there is a fire drill all people are expected to leave the residence. This is so you get used to closing your doors and windows and so we can see how efficient your residence is. This time some of the dorms weren't very good about getting up and most of those people were guys. We will be having one more fire drill before Christmas to see if things can be improved. All people will be expected to get up. Let's see if we can do it more orderly and faster next time.

Well mid-terms are just about here so now is the time to get down to some hard studying. At times it will seem that there is too much to do but try to relax and do the best you can. Remember fall break is just around the corner!

The Retreat That Almost Wasn't

On October 3, a bus full of 24 retreat-bound people and a lot of stuff rolled out of the GLC parking lot right on schedule--5:30 p.m. (mountain standard time). No one minded the delay, and we went cruising down the highway (actually put-putting in the S.U. bus) without a care. Unfortunately, our hopes of arriving at Sylvan Lake by 8:30 were somewhat altered when the bus started heating up in Wetaskiwin. About an hour and three fan belts later, we were back on the highway. By that time, we were all wondering if we'd even make it to the lake, but we did--at 10:00 p.m.

After a get-acquainted session and a minor pig-out, we tried to get some sleep. About ten "toughies" slept out by the campfire and watched a magnificent northern light and star show. In the morning, a few of us were cold, but we found a remedy for that--pile on Karen and Pam!

Saturday was BEAUTIFUL! We couldn't have asked for better weather. The day was highlighted by leaf fights, volleyball games, a water fight, and a polar dip for a few brave souls! That evening, we had a game of Stealing the Flag, which resulted in several casualties, including a twisted ankle, thorns in everyone's hands, and a big rip in Greg Neufeld's jeans!

The hidden talents of the group were revealed later that night as each group did a presentation on the theme "Freedom in Christ". We saw a courtroom trial, a newspaper that would rival The Dag, a TV talk show, and an almost-motion picture. The presentations were great entertainment! Who could forget Freedomville, Alberta and Johnny Freeman and his far-out, spun-out, spaced-out, and just plain weird guests?

The retreat ended with an outdoor worship service planned by all of us. It was a meaningful way to end the weekend, by praising God in the beauty of His creation.

In all, the first retreat of the year was a great time to think, relax, sing, play, and learn. The food was terrific, thanks to our gourmet cooks, June and Kim, the weather was beautiful, the company great, and we truly experienced "Freedom in Christ". Even if none of us got any work done, it was well worth going!

Worshipping God in His greatest creation.

Two other girls, I can't mention their names...had the same wet experience. It was great! That night we had debriefing in our groups. Then you can say what you think of each other, which I think is very good. It brings you closer together; we should do that more, not only in camps. Sunday I had my first experience in a Quicksilver II.

I can tell you that my experience was like canoeing on a big ship and the result is sore muscles. "But that's what makes you a tuff girl" they told me. Okay. A big happening that day, Gibber revealed to us his gorp, which he had hidden away for us till now. The gorp tasted very good indeed! At night we celebrated Thanksgiving. We shared together, had a real good time together. Nancy taught us some songs, she has a beautiful voice, I think I may say that now!

Supper was really good that night, some groups even had 4 or 5 courses! Now you understand why we look so healthy! And whatever you eat I think in the outdoors everything taste better.

Oh no, Monday, the last day; I don't want to go back to civilization!" It was a long way to go, but finally we saw our end point: the Devon-bridge. Our trip was ended. If you would ask me: "Josi do you want to go back tomorrow?" I would say: "Yes, please, I'd love to go again."

It was a great time. In my native language I'd say: 'twas buttenhewoon!!!

JOCK TALK

VIKING HOCKEY

The Vikings, in the middle of training camp, did fairly well in their first three exhibition games.

The first exhibition game was won on Oct. 11 against the Sherwood Park knights. CLC beat this Junior B team by a score of 9-4. Scorers for the Vikings were Vaughn Dyck and Ed Olanski with two goals, and singles from Sikorski, Belaglowha, Berg, Fisher and McLeod.

The second game was on Oct. 12 against the Leduc Riggers, another Junior B team. The Vikings won this one by a score at 7-5. Ed Olanski had two goals and Schultz, Johnson, Siemans, Carlson and Langland had singles. There were five ex-Vikings with the Leduc team. Dave Recknagle, Lorne Monaghan, Randy Stollery, Shawn Bailor and Mike Lovsin.

The third game was on Oct. 14. It was a tie game against the Leduc Riggers, 7-7. No stats were available.

There will be another exhibition this Homecoming weekend. This one against Red Deer College. It will be on Oct. 19 (Sunday) at 4:00 p.m. at the CADRECA. Remember to come out and cheer on our Vikings!

CROSS-COUNTRY CONFERENCE MEET

The final X-country running meet will be held on October 18th, in the morning. This is the X-country meet this year. Teams from all the colleges in the ACAC have been invited. Last year the men's team won and the women's team came in second, behind the first place team by one point. Coach Marv Lee is confident that both teams "should do quite well".

"I suspect the girls would maybe have an easier time of it, in terms of winning. They certainly are the favorite. The man have a good team. They'll be nip and tuck with NAIT. They have two former ACAC champions running for them. But I think we'll have a fighting chance for winning that too...But the fact that the meet's on our home course will help us too.

We're certainly competitive with our numbers, we have a lot of girls that are quite good runners, it's going to be very difficult to choose the top six (to run in this meet). The guys are competitive too, but again NAIT is going to be our major competition."

This team has done very well in previous meets. They won both the Red Deer and Camrose meets, and made a very good showing in the Golden Bears Open meet, two weekends ago, under extremely competitive conditions.

The conference meet on Saturday will start and finish near the Ski Hill, here in Camrose. The women run at 10:30 a.m. and the guys run at 11:00 a.m. Be sure to come out and root for our Vikings.

CLC GOLF

On Oct. 9 and 10, the annual ACAC Golf Tournament was held at the Belvedere Golf Club in Edmonton. The conditions were very windy on a normally difficult course. SAIT emerged as the victor in the men's competition as well as posting the low individual score at 158 for 36 holes. RDC won the mixed event.

Only 6 colleges competed in men's golf as opposed to 9 in previous years. Competition from the larger centres continued to get tougher.

Golfers from CLC were Rod Mines, Vada Lindstrand, Dennis Larsen and Doug Savchuk.

Result of the men's event for 36 holes follows:

		Day 1	Day 2	Total
1st	SAIT	340	331	671
2nd	MHC	347	344	691
3rd	MRC	349	348	697
4th	NAIT	362	347	709
5th	RDC	405	360	765
6th	CLC	392	375	767

WANTED

Anyone who would like to drive the Students' Union Bus please leave your name at the SU office as soon as possible. This would involve getting an Alberta Class 2 licence and being able to drive for SU functions. Some Monetary reimbursement will be available.

Do you play a band instrument? The athletic department along with the Students' Council are looking for talented, enthusiastic musicians to form a pep band for intercollegiate sporting events (i.e. hockey, basketball, and volleyball games) and any other occasion which would warrant a Booster Band. How about you? If interested please leave your name and phone number in the Students' Union office (upstairs Convocation Centre).

WINNERS OF BUS DESIGN

Thor—15 pts.

Troll—5 pts.

Judging committee found good ideas in both but used the greater amount of Thor's entry.

YEARBOOK

REMINDER TO PICK UP 1979-1980 yearbooks at Students' Union office (upstairs Convocation Centre). Regular office hours are 1:00-2:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. These and older yearbooks will be available at Homecoming this weekend.

RAC NEWSLETTER

What is the RAC! It is the Revolutionary Aktion Komity (sic). We're working toward the overthrow of the puppet Students' Union and the banishing of the dreaded secret agents of the administration, the sinister hall seniors. This is only an introduction to our powerful and far reaching organization. Our first meeting will be Friday evening at 7:00 p.m. (Oct. 17) in the Norsemen's Conference Room (code name: Hagar's Cove). All are welcome to join us in the struggle against oppression. Yours in the revolutionary rite.

True Dignity

FRIGG HANSEN

Dear Frigg:

I'm in a dilemma. My ex-girlfriend is coming to CLC for Homecoming, and my present girlfriend doesn't know. To add to the problem, I haven't told my Ex that she is my Ex and my present girlfriend doesn't know there ever was an Ex!

About to be born
between two lovers!

Dear Torn:

You Casanova! Your safest course would be to invent a family death, and go home for the weekend! There, are a few alternatives however! You could suddenly get mono and confine yourself to your room, or you could hire a Hit Man.

Good Luck!

Dear Frigg:

Campus life has been a bit uncomfortable this week. I have heard of wild women, mattress thieves, Autumn (falling leaves) and showers, but the four combined in one night is ridiculous! Things have been backwards here. I have to vacuum my bed, (somehow leaves keep blowing into it) when the mattress is there and retrieve my clothes from the shower.

How can I get back at these degenerate females?
Upset in Ronning!

Dear Upset:

It must be great to be so popular. Remember your childhood days when you kicked someone you liked! Well, some people at CLC still have a strange way of showing their affection and really go overboard. You should be flattered that you get so much attention. A good friend of mine, Maxwell Smart, would suggest you use "The Old Key in the Lock Trick," if this problem gets out of hand. In other words STUPID, lock you door!

It's been a long day...
